

The new Creative Commons 4.0 Licence – what's new and why it's important

The Digital Repository of Ireland is delighted to welcome you to a free public talk on Creative Commons.

Location: The Royal Irish Academy, 19 Dawson Street, Dublin 2

12.00 – 13.00 pm, Tuesday 25th March 2014

Creative Commons licences have enabled content creators to share their creations with others legally and flexibly for over a decade. Now, more than ever, the new CC version 4 licences are easier to understand, allow even more flexible attribution, and cover database rights where applicable. This talk will focus on what's new, why it is important to use open licensing, and on the intricacies of dealing with content with mixed licensing.

Puneet Kishor, Manager, Science and Data Policy, Creative Commons

No booking necessary. Contact dri@ria.ie for more information.