Launch of the Digital Repository of Ireland Community Archive Scheme

The Digital Repository of Ireland (DRI) is a repository or digital archive for the preservation of Ireland's humanities, cultural heritage, and social sciences data.

As a national repository our collections, membership and partnerships aim to reflect Ireland's society and culture in all of its breadth and variety. DRI works with local history organisations, community groups and social movements that have digital material to archive through our annual Community Archive Scheme.

If you are interested in finding out about how we can help your local group to preserve their collections and data please join us for our launch on Wednesday 30 August at 10.00am.

Register here for the DRI Community Archive Launch or email our Membership Manager: m.obrien@ria.ie
